Councilman Boyce Declares They Should Not Be Hampered by Expensive Water - Consumption Bill Introduced.

After the House bill regulating the barber trade in St. Louis had been reported on favorably by the Ways and Means Committee of the Council. Councilman Rolfes yesterday proposed an amendment reducing the water rates for the first chair in a barber shop from $10 to $5, and for each additional chair from $2 to $2. Chairman Boyce of the committee seconded the motion, and in explanation POLICE SEEK stated that barbers should not be hampered in the use of water, quoting "clean-liness is next to Godliness." The amendment was passed. Councilman Sheehan introduced a bill defining consumption as a communicable disease, and requiring all physicians who come in contact with the malady to make personal diagnosis of the patient and, in case consumption is found, to report the case and its particulars to the Health

In instances where no physician is attending a case, brought to the attention of the Health Commissioner, that official has the power to appetint a physician for each person. Failure to report a case of the contagion to the Health Department after its presence has been established is made punishable by a fine of not less than 350 nor more than 250.

Chairman Gardner of the Legislation Committee announced a public hearing on the House bill exempting engineers of portable and statemary engine, and those having charge of several kinds of boliers, from a license. This measure has passed the House of Delegates and reached the Council January 31. The public hearing is to be held Friday afternoon in the Council committee-rooms at 4 o'clock.

Under the provisions of the ordinance the engineers who, in a large measure, are affiliated with a union, declare that the measure not only exempts them from a license, but also makes them immune from inspection. Mr. Smith's visit was for the purpose of reporting to the board the extent of the repairs necessary to put the roof in shape for the work of restoring the paintings.

The Commissioner discovered that the gutters surrounding the observation tower and also the drains just above the wings of the building, had given way, either to the elements or to improper construction, and allowed the water, which accumulated in the gutters, to find an exit between the layers of the conner.

in the gutters, to find an exit between the layers of the copper.

Mr. Smith stated that the damaged drains could easily be repaired at a slight cost. He found the roof generally in excellent condition, and capable of withstanding many years of wear. By the discovery the expense of putting the roof in shape for the desorators will be slight and the immense labor of overhauling the dome is saved.

Active work repairing the roof will be started at once. started at once.
